2[illegible] Years of Agony
Ended. The Cuticura Remedies Triumphant.

I HAVE been afflicted for twenty years with an obstinate skin disease, called by some M. D.'s psoriasis and others leprosy, commencing on my scalp; and in spite of all I could do with the help of the most skillful doctors it slowly but surely extended until a year ago this winter it covered my entire person in form of dry scales. For the last three years I have been unable to do any labor, and suffering intensely all the time. Every morning there would be nearly a dustpanful of scales taken from the sheet on my bed, some of them half as large as the envelope containing this letter. In the latter part of winter my skin commenced cracking open. I tried everything almost that could be thought of without any relief. The 12th of June I started west in hopes I could reach the Hot Springs. I reached Detroit and was so low I thought I should have to go to the hospital, but finally got as far as Lansing, Mich., where I had a sister living. One Dr. — treated me about two weeks, but did me no good. All thought I had but a short time to live. I earnestly prayed to die. Cracked through the skin all over my back, across my ribs, arms, hands, limbs; feet badly swollen; toe nails came off; finger nails dead and hard as a bone; hair dead, dry and lifeless as old straw. O my God! how I did suffer.

My sister had a small part of a box of Cuticura in the house. She wouldn't give up; said "We will try Cuticura." Some was applied to one hand and arm. Eureka! there was relief; stopped the terrible burning sensation from the word go. They immediately got the CUTICURA RESOLVENT, CUTICURA and CUTICURA SOAP. I commenced by taking one tablespoonful of Resolvent three times a day after meals; had a bath once a day, water about blood heat; used Cuticura Soap freely; applied Cuticura morning and evening. Result, returned to my home in just six weeks from time I left, and my skin as smooth as this sheet of paper.

CONGRESS

Both Houses in Session at 2:30 This Morning.

AGREEMENTS REACHED SLOWLY

Democratic Members Having a Jubilee. A Summary of the Work of the Forty Eighth Congress, Etc.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, March [illegible].—Dawes called up the conference report on the Indian appropriation bill. The two houses, he said, had agreed on a bill so far as all items properly pertaining to an appropriation bill were concerned. The senate had struck out all items of general legislation and all items for depredation claims. Upon these, however, the house insisted.

Thus the senate was confronted with the possibility, to say nothing more, of an extra session of congress growing out of the action of the house. [illegible] of that body had shown the magnificent will power of one man to produce [illegible] he regarded as [illegible] with the gravest consequences to the people of the United States. The exceedingly defective form of legislation [illegible] on appropriation bills tended to make him [illegible] so far at least as related to important legislation. No more [illegible] confession of legislative incompetency had ever been seen than had been manifested [illegible] thrown upon the senate chamber within thirty days [illegible] bill appropriating millions [illegible] had to be passed without consideration [illegible] sent to the senate within [illegible] days of the close of the session [illegible] the river and harbor lump appropriation [illegible] of the people's money.

In order to bring the question to a point and get members [illegible] Dawes moved, though he said he would vote against his own motion, that the senate [illegible] the provision of the bill relating to [illegible] jurisdiction and [illegible] reported by Indian [illegible].

The senate refused to recede—yeas [illegible], nays [illegible].

THE OKLAHOMA QUESTION.

Vest hoped the senate would agree with the house provision regarding the Oklahoma country [illegible] the senate recede from its amendment.

Ingalls did not believe the senate appreciated the full significance of the Oklahoma difficulty. He had no doubt that within forty eight hours 2,000 persons by concerted action would move on these Oklahoma lands to forcibly occupy them and prepared to maintain that occupancy by force of arms. He did not believe a graver complication could arise in the dawn of the coming administration than the complication likely to arise in this matter.

Cullom said he had received reliable information that 2,000 men were ready and determined to go on the land referred to, on the 5th of March.

Butler asked whether the commander in chief of the United States army had not sent an armed force to put and keep out the people alluded to.

Ingalls said yes, but the star of that eminent commander was about to set. Within a very short time the command of that very majestic body known as the army of the United States would have passed from the control of the great general who now commanded it to a still greater general whose course was still in the womb of the future. But undoubtedly there was an impression that after the 5th of March troops would be withdrawn. Before the sun rose again misguided citizens of the United States might be in conflict with troops. He (Ingalls) would regret the shedding of blood, but there was but one way in his opinion to avoid it and that was for the senate not to invite the people to go there by a promise that negotiation was about to be entered on for the purpose of opening the lands to settlement.

The senate insisted on its amendment and the chair appointed Dawes, Plumb and Ransom a committee of conference on the bill.

A message from the house announced its disagreement on the sundry civil bill. The senate insisted on its amendments and the chair appointed as a conference committee Allison, Hale and Beck.

TUESDAY'S SESSION CLOSED.

After further discussion of appropriation bills the senate adjourned and the legislative day of the 4th immediately began.

The credentials of Leland Stanford and J. B. Eustis, senators-elect, were laid before the senate.

Hawley submitted a verbal report of the work done by the special committee to investigate the steel producing capacity of the United States, stating that the investigations had not been completed for want of time. The committee was continued during recess and required to report next December.

Aldrich submitted a report from the committee on transportation routes to the seaboard; ordered printed.

Hale called up the general deficiency appropriation bill and its reading was proceeded with. The house provision abolishing the office of the tenth census was stricken out by the senate.

Miller of New York offered an amendment appropriating $100,000 to complete the pedestal of the statue of "Liberty Enlightening the World," to be erected on Bedloe's island in New York harbor. Agreed to.

Amendments were adopted appropriating $50,000 to continue the Mississippi river commission, and increasing the compensation for postmasters whose salaries have been readjusted under the act of 1883 to $[illegible], an increase of $213,[illegible].

A few other unimportant amendments were adopted and the bill passed.

The fortification bill was then taken up. An amendment was adopted appropriating $[illegible] for the purchase of machine guns.

The committee's amendments were admitted, and the bill passed.

The senate went into executive session and when the doors reopened took a recess until 9 o'clock.

EVENING SESSION.

When the senate reconvened the river and harbor bill was taken up. As passed by the house it appropriated $5,000,000 in gross. As proposed by the senate committee to be amended it appropriates $10,000,000. Conger defended the increase, and Fry proposed a lump sum bill.

Pending debate on the bill Pendleton offered the following resolution, for which he asked immediate consideration:

Resolved, That the thanks of the senate are due and are hereby tendered to the Honorable George F. Edmunds for the courteous, impartial and able manner in which he has presided over its deliberations and fulfilled the duty of president pro tem.

The resolution was unanimously agreed to and discussion of the river and harbor bill was resumed.

Dawes submitted a new conference report on the Indian appropriation bill. The only remaining point of difference, he said, was the provision relating to Oklahoma lands, and on motion of Vest the senate receded from its position and adopted the house provision.

Consideration of the river and harbor bill was then resumed.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Pending debate the senate passed the house bill providing for the adoption by American ships of the International Regulations for Preventing Collisions at Sea.

Dawes submitted a new conference report on the fortification bill showing adjustment of all differences.

On motion of Pendleton the house bill for the return of the [illegible] indemnity fund passed without debate.

The senate then proceeded to consider house pension bills favorably reported from the senate committee.

Pension bills having been disposed of, the senate passed the house bill to amend section 764 of the revised statutes so as to allow appeals to the United States supreme court in habeas corpus cases.

A joint resolution submitted by Aldrich was passed, requesting the president to enter into negotiation with states of the Latin union and other foreign powers with a view of securing an agreement for free coinage of silver, with full legal tender power, at such uniform ratio to gold as shall be agreed upon.

The river and harbor bill was again taken up and the senate agreed by [illegible] yeas to 18 nays to a committee amendment increasing the appropriation from five to ten million dollars.

House.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—There were hardly a dozen members in the hall when the session was resumed this morning. The sundry civil bill had, in the meantime, come over from the senate, heavily loaded with amendments.

Randall asked unanimous consent that this bill be taken up and the senate amendments non-concurred in and sent to conference committee, but objection came from Hepburn. Then there was a call of the house, which showed the presence of only forty-five members.

Randall's motion was then renewed and agreed to, and Randall, Forney and Ryan were appointed conferees on the part of the house.

After various ineffectual attempts to have bills taken up by unanimous consent, and it being plainly impossible to have any public business transacted, the house adjourned until 11 o'clock.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Debate on the ocean mail transportation clause was continued. After a long debate the house concurred in the senate amendment authorizing the postmaster-general to lease premises for third class post offices.

Hiscock moved that the house concur in the senate amendment relative to ocean mail transportation. Lost—yeas 128, nays [illegible].

The house then insisted on its disagreement to the amendment and a further conference was ordered.

Ellis submitted a conference report on the Indian appropriation bill. The report stated that an agreement was reached on all the points in controversy except upon the senate amendment striking out the clauses for paying claims against Indian tribes on account of depredations, and enacting legislation relative to the introduction of intoxicating spirits in Indian territory. The amendment striking out the clause relative to claims against Indian tribes was concurred in. The other amendment was disagreed to, and a further conference was ordered.

Hancock submitted a conference report on the pension appropriation bill [illegible] adopted. The house receded from its disagreement to all the senate amendments and virtually agreed to the bill [illegible] $[illegible]. [illegible]

EVENING SESSION.

Upon reconvening numerous motions to take a recess were made [illegible] point of [illegible].

[illegible] of New York [illegible] as the last [illegible] he would [illegible] Washington [illegible] the house to make a donation of any amount to [illegible] Jefferson [illegible] for the [illegible] appropriation for that purpose [illegible].

The proceedings dragged along very slowly, the [illegible] the names of the members [illegible] the members themselves passing lazily between the tellers as the [illegible] was raised upon [illegible]. [illegible] from the long session of last night the representatives took no interest in the proceedings, rarely voting, lounging back in their chairs smoking, and [illegible]. [illegible] was ornamented with a picture of Grover Cleveland and bearing the legend "For president, 1884," which some enthusiast [illegible] Cleveland [illegible] quantities throughout the [illegible].

The fun of the evening was confined to the ways [illegible] where Representative [illegible] was celebrating his last night in the [illegible] by treating his particular friends to a musical [illegible], the instrumental portion of which was furnished by a party of Lexington colored men, while [illegible] now and then joined in the refrain [illegible] melody and broke into applause as each [illegible] was completed.

THE INDIAN BILL DISPOSED OF.

At [illegible] a conference report on the Indian appropriation bill was submitted and agreed to.

[illegible], rising to a question of privilege, called attention to the fact that the [illegible] of February senate amendments to the bill to prevent unlawful occupancy of public lands had been concurred in upon a statement of [illegible] that the amendments met with the unanimous approval of the committee on public lands. He had since learned that the bill had not been referred to the committee and that the amendments had never been recommended by it.

[illegible] presented a conference report on the postoffice appropriation bill. The report announced continued disagreement, the point of difference still being the clause providing for ocean mail transportation.

Holman made a protest against the senate amendment. He [illegible] against the principle of subsidies and appealed to the democratic side to stand by the house conferees.

Hiscock and Ellis made equally vigorous speeches on the other side of the question.

IN SESSION AT 2:30.

4 A. M.—The prospect at present is that the house will remain in session for some hours. It is now discussing the conference report on the postoffice appropriation bill, and it is the private opinion of many members that should the house insist on its disagreement to the senate amendment relative to ocean mail transportation an extra session is unavoidable.

[illegible] A. M.—The house has adopted the conference report on the fortification appropriation bill. The postoffice bill is still under consideration.

Hiscock moved that the house recede from its disagreement to the senate amendments. Agreed to, [illegible] nays 88.

[illegible] A. M.—A motion to reconsider the vote by which the house receded from its disagreement to the ocean mail service amendment was tabled, [illegible]. There is no sign of a recess.

ITS RECORD.

What the Forty Eighth Congress Has Done and Failed to do.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—During the two sessions of the Forty-eighth congress there have been introduced in the house [illegible] bills and 36 joint resolutions. The following named measures of general importance have been enacted into laws: Bills to establish a bureau of labor, to establish a bureau of animal industry, to prevent the spread of pleuro-pneumonia and other contagious diseases among domestic animals, to repeal the test oath act of 1862, to limit to three years the time in which prosecutions may be begun against persons for violation of internal revenue laws, to establish a bureau of navigation in the treasury department, to grant letter carriers at free delivery offices fifteen days leave of absence with pay in a year, to provide a retired list for soldiers and marines who have served continuously for thirty years or upward, to reduce the rate of postage on newspapers and other periodicals of the second class when not sent by others than the publisher or news agent to 1 cent for each four ounces, to remove certain burdens from the American merchant marine (the Dingley shipping bill), to provide civil government for Alaska, to prevent and punish counterfeiting in the United States of bonds or other securities of foreign governments, to extend the duration of the court of commissioners of Alabama claims, to make all public roads and highways post roads, to make it felony for any person to falsely personate an officer or employe of the United States acting under authority of the United States, to remove the charge of desertion from soldiers of the late war who after having served faithfully until the close of the war left their commands without leave, to provide for the location of a branch home for disabled volunteer soldiers of the Mexican war and the war of 1812 whose disabilities were not incurred in service against the United States, to reorganize the corps of judge advocate of the army, to declare forfeited certain lands granted to aid in the construction of a railroad and telegraph line from Portland to Astoria, Oregon, to reorganize the inspector general department of the army, to provide for ascertainment of claims of American citizens for spoliations committed by the French prior to July 31, 1801, by referring them to a court of claims.

NOT YET LAWS.

The following important bills have been sent to the president for his approval and will doubtless be signed by him before adjournment of congress to-morrow and hence may be considered as enacted. Bills to prohibit the importation and immigration of foreigners and aliens under contract or agreement to perform labor in this country, to declare forfeiture of lands granted to aid the construction of the Texas Pacific railroad and to prevent unlawful occupation of public lands.

Among important measures yet remaining in conference committees upon points of difference between the houses are the house bill to repeal the preemption and timber culture laws, house bill to forfeit lands granted the Atlantic and Pacific Railroad company, and house bill to provide for settlement of claims of officers and enlisted men of the army for private property destroyed in the service of the United States.

BILLS THAT FAILED.

The most important measures which have come before this congress for action and failed are as follows: The Morrison tariff bill, "To reduce import duties and war taxes;" the McPherson bill, to provide for the issue of circulating notes to national banks, the Blair bill to provide for the establishment and temporary support of common schools, bill to provide for collection of statistics relating to marriage and divorce, bill to provide for the performance of the duties of the president of the United States in case of death, removal, resignation or inability of both president and vice president, a proposition to suspend coinage of standard silver dollars, a bill to provide for the restoration of Fitz John Porter to the army (passed both houses, but was vetoed), house bill to authorize the purchase by citizens of the United States, admission free of duty, of foreign built ships for use in the foreign carrying trade, house joint resolution proposing an amendment to the constitution, to provide that the right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or any state on account of color, senate bill to provide for copyright for newspaper articles, house bill to provide that hereafter appointments of governors of territories should be limited to persons who have been residents of such territories for at least two years, senate joint resolution proposing an amendment to the constitution to provide that the right of citizens to vote shall not be denied or abridged on account of nativity, bill to provide for the establishment of a uniform system of bankruptcy throughout the United States, house bill to provide pensions for veterans of the Mexican war, house joint resolution to provide for the appointment of a commissioner on the alcoholic liquor traffic, bill to establish a board of commissioners of inter-state commerce and a bill to provide for counting the electoral vote.

BILLS KILLED IN THE BUD.

Of measures of general interest introduced during the lifetime of this congress which will fail of final action, a large number passed one house never to go further than the calendar of the other house and will die there, while a great number have never even been reported from the committees to which they were referred. The bill to punish bigamy, the Hoar anti-polygamy bill, passed the senate but failed in the house. Among bills which passed the house but failed to pass the senate are the following: To declare forfeited unearned railroad land grants, to amend the Thurman act and provide for investment of the sinking fund of Pacific railroads, and for settlement of their accounts with the government, to establish a department of agriculture, and to regulate forms of bills of lading.

Among measures reported upon favorably by committees without further action are the following: For establishment of United States courts in Indian territory, to prohibit the use of mails to newspapers containing lottery advertisements, to provide for admission of southern Dakota as a state, to provide for inspection of meats intended for exportation and prohibit importation of adulterated articles of food and drink, and to authorize the president to prohibit importations in certain cases, making an appropriation to defray the expenses of military exploration of Alaska, to declare forfeited unearned portions of the land grant of the Northern Pacific railroad, to prevent acquisition of property in this country by aliens, to prohibit the hiring out of labor of United States prisoners under contract, to provide for adjustment of accounts of laborers under the eight-hour law and to provide for survey of a water route to connect Lake Michigan with the Detroit river.

Several investigating committees sat during the session, but the result of their labors has been fully reported from time to time.

THE STREETS GAILY THRONGED

Cleveland and Hendricks are Visited and Serenaded—Scenes in and around the Hotels and the White House

WASHINGTON, March 3.—At 7 o'clock this morning the mists of night still clung around the Baltimore and Philadelphia depot and but few persons witnessed the special train bearing the president-elect and his party as it drew up on a side track in the depot. The committee of citizens appointed by Chairman Cochrane to receive the president-elect had been informed by him that he desired to avoid a public reception, and would prefer to receive a visit from the committee at his hotel. They were also informed yesterday evening by members of the senate designated by Mr. Cleveland as the medium of further communication, that other and private arrangements had been made for his comfortable reception at the station and conveyance to the hotel, but, nevertheless, when the party arrived only a few train hands and half a dozen reporters were present. The president-elect was accompanied by his brother, Rev. L. Cleveland and wife and child, his sisters, Mrs. Hoyt and Miss Cleveland, his niece Miss Mary Hastings, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Manning, and Colonel Daniel Lamont, wife and two children. After a delay of about ten minutes, Chairman Berret and Mr. Galt, of the inaugural committee, put in an appearance and were introduced to the president-elect. Some twenty minutes were required to secure carriages, and it was ten minutes to 8 o'clock before the party disembarked. Meanwhile the news of the arrival of the party had spread and a crowd gathered around the Pullman car "Maranion" and stared hard at the president-elect, who bore the scrutiny with equanimity. When the carriages arrived the party alighted and proceeded through the ladies' waiting-room to the north entrance, Cleveland leading with Chairman Berret. He wore a blue overcoat and silk hat, and did not appear to be at all fatigued by his night's journey. Carriages were taken and the party proceeded to the Arlington, where a hasty toilet was made and breakfast served.

CLEVELAND FORMALLY WELCOMED.

The sub-committee appointed by the inauguration general reception committee to welcome the president-elect to Washington called on him, by appointment, this afternoon. Their chairman, Hon. Richard T. Merrick, after introducing his fellow members, expressed the welcome in a few well chosen words, and Governor Cleveland felicitously returned his acknowledgment. An informal conversation ensued for some time, and the committee then individually took their leave.

MANY CALLERS RECEIVED.

After the call of the citizens' reception committee Cleveland continued to receive callers until 6 o'clock, when he dined at the hotel. Among those who called were Hendricks, Vilas, Secretary McCulloch, General Farnsworth, Daniel Manning, Senator Gorman, Senator Garland, and General Sheridan and three members of his staff. Hendricks called about noon, and had a long talk with Cleveland. It was after 8 o'clock when Cleveland and Colonel Lamont appeared in the parlors after dinner, and from that hour until 10 o'clock the president-elect continued to receive callers, who were admitted only after sending in their cards.

At 10 o'clock Cleveland retired. He will leave the hotel to-morrow morning at [illegible] o'clock for the White house, and from there will be driven to the capitol.

Hendricks received a large number of callers at his rooms to-day. In the evening he was serenaded by several visiting organizations, and in acknowledging one of these compliments, tendered him by the Busch Zouaves of St. Louis and the Flambeaux Club of Topeka, Kansas, he said he regarded the demonstrations to-day as "endorsements of the principles of pure and honest government."

SCENES IN AND AROUND THE WHITE HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—The White house building and grounds were crowded with visitors to-day. The East room was the only one open to sightseers. The president was kept very busy during the day, signing acts of congress and attending to other official matters. Members of the United States supreme court, headed by Chief Justice Waite, called just before noon, and took leave of the president.

A meeting of the cabinet was held at noon and lasted two hours. All the members were present. The session was devoted to clearing up all official business requiring action during the present administration.

At 2:30 the president received the members of the diplomatic corps. All the legations were represented, and it seemed as if every diplomat in the city was given an opportunity to take official leave of the president.

While arrangements were being made for packing and removing the personal effects of the president and family, a large express wagon drove up to the main entrance and deposited a number of trunks, boxes and parcels containing the personal effects of President-elect Cleveland and his private secretary.

After the president has reviewed the inaugural procession he will proceed to the residence of Secretary Frelinghuysen, whose guest he will be for two or three weeks.

President-elect Cleveland called on President Arthur this evening.

THE RUSH TO WASHINGTON.

BALTIMORE, March 3.—There has been more life here to-day than for a long time. Trains from east and west began to arrive early, and by noon the city was thronged with strangers on the way to Washington. The railroads were all taxed to their full capacity, and trains will be run all night to accommodate the vast throng. Both lines from Baltimore to Washington are double tracked, and trains are run at full speed.

To-night as the train conveying the New York county democracy emerged from the west end of Union tunnel a shot was fired at it from the tunnel of Green-Mount cemetery. The ball passed through the window of a car and through the hat of one of the passengers. Police were at hand, but the assailant jumped down nearly twenty feet into the cemetery grounds and escaped.

Late trains brought considerable numbers of voyagers back from Washington, unable to get accommodations there for the night.

NEW YORK, March 3.—Members of the county democracy and Irving hall left for Washington this morning, 1800 strong.

THE NIGHT BEFORE.

The Democratic Hosts Take Complete Possession of the Capital.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—The city on the eve of inauguration day presents a scene of extraordinary activity, excitement and enthusiasm. The fronts of all buildings on Pennsylvania avenue are nearly concealed by flags, shields and festoons of bunting, so that the street is almost literally walled in with tri-colored drapery. The lanterns of the street lamp posts have been removed, and gas flames, surrounded by colored globes, and electric lights blaze on every corner.

Along the pavements of the brilliantly illuminated streets, under fluttering streamers and banners, move crowds of inauguration visitors, military organizations in full uniform headed by fine bands and lighted by locomotive headlights and flanked with torches, are constantly passing back and forth through Pennsylvania avenue and Fifteenth streets, on their way to or from the headquarters of the president-elect, and are greeted with cheers as they wheel around the corners between the throngs of spectators.

Companies of state militia, in plain and serviceable blue, alternate with the picturesque squads of zouaves in showy red and white. New York political clubs, in long overcoats and silk hats, are followed by flambeaux from Topeka, Kansas, dressed in spectral uniform of unbroken white, and carrying peculiar pneumatic torches, into whose hollow shafts they blow at intervals, so as to send up high slender tongues of naphtha-like flames.

Duckworth club, of Cincinnati, presenting a very creditable appearance, is cheered as it marches along in light overcoats, dark pants and high white hats. Bands of all kinds are to be heard in every direction, four or five sometimes passing the treasury department together, but in different directions and playing different airs.

Around the Arlington hotel, where the president-elect is staying, there has been a great throng of people all evening, watching arriving and departing troops, and listening to the serenades which bands successively play under Mr. Cleveland's windows. The whole city seems, even at this late hour of the evening, to be astir, and presents a festive and holiday appearance which is as striking as it is unusual.

GENERAL HAZEN TO BE COURTMARTIALED.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—The president to-day ordered a general courtmartial to convene in the city of Washington the 11th inst., for the trial of Brigadier General W. B. Hazen, chief signal officer of the army, on charges of conduct prejudicial to good order and military discipline, in having officially and publicly criticised the secretary of war for not following his recommendation to send an expedition to the relief of Lieutenant Greely in September, 1883.

Following is the detail for the court: Major General Hancock, Major General Schofield, Brigadier General Howard, Brigadier General Terry, Brigadier General Augur, Brigadier General McFeely, Brigadier General Holabird, Brigadier General Murray, General Newton, Colonel Andrews of the twenty-fifth infantry, Colonel Merritt of the fifth cavalry, Colonel Block of the twenty-third infantry, with Captain J. W. Claus of the twenty-fourth infantry as judge advocate.

Orders were also issued for the suspension of General Hazen and for him to consider himself in arrest until further orders. Captain Mills of the signal service has been ordered on duty as acting chief signal officer, pending the result of the trial of Hazen. It is understood the action of the president in this case was precipitated yesterday by a statement in which General Hazen is represented as placing on the secretary of war the responsibility for the loss of so many members of the Greely party.

A CASE FOR THE JUDICIARY.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—The secretary of the interior to-day transmitted to the senate a letter from the commissioner of railways, in response to a resolution of the senate asking whether the Union Pacific Railway Company and other land grant or bonded railway companies have constructed and are maintaining and operating their own lines of telegraph, and whether telegraph messages are accepted and transmitted for all persons and corporations without discrimination. The commissioner considers that the underlying question is a controversy between telegraph companies arising out of differing constructions of the same law, and that the question is clearly one for judicial adjudication.

THE TEXAS STRIKE INCREASING.

MARSHALL, Tex., March 3.—Striking employes of the Texas Pacific shops carried out the resolution adopted at their meeting, by stopping all passing freight trains to-day. Eleven trains are now standing in the yard, several cars being loaded with perishable goods. The strikers this afternoon notified officers of the road that within twenty-four hours all passenger trains would be stopped, but an engine with the mail car would be carried through. If the company refuses to send a conductor the strikers will detail one of their number to take mails to the Pacific coast. Good order prevails. No attempts were made to destroy property. The city authorities are watching every movement of the strikers, but as yet have found no cause to interfere. A committee from the Marshall shops to-day visited Longview, the junction of the Texas Pacific and the International and Great Northern road, to induce roundhouse employes to join the strike. The Longview strikers agreed not to allow any coaches except mail to be taken out after midnight to-night. This plan, if carried out, will seriously interfere with the traveling public. A special from Palestine, on the International and Great Northern, says the strikers paraded the streets to-day. All are determined to hold out against the cut.

WILL JOIN EL MAHDI.

GALVESTON, Tex., March 3.—A News' Dallas special says: Major W. H. Wilson, architect and civil engineer, of this city, left to-day for St. Louis, in response, it is said, to a formal proposition for his services in fortification engineering under El Mahdi. It is believed, though without seeming authority, that the proposition has no less a personage behind it than General Stone. When Earl Dufferin undertook the reorganization of Egypt he was ignored by Hicks Pasha. In this connection it is worthy of note that a gentleman here who traveled in Egypt says General Stone's letter in the New York World, cautioning the British against sending their army from Suakem to Berber, was misleading and in the interest of a disaster to the British. Major Wilson was graduated with high honors at Staunton, Virginia, and served as a corps officer under Stonewall Jackson.

The London Press Endorses the Government's Stand. The Kassala Garrison Again Defeated by El Mahdi's Forces

LONDON, March 3.—In the house of lords this afternoon, in answer to questions respecting the position of the government on the Russian-Afghan frontier question, Earl Granville admitted that Russian troops had been advancing in disputed territory of Afghanistan, and when requested by England to withdraw from their advance post they refused to retire. Sir Peter Lumsden advised the Afghans not to retire from before the Russian troops, but to dispute every inch of ground, and said the British government would uphold them. Granville refused further information. Granville, when pressed by Marquis Salisbury concerning the situation in central Asia, said the latest report from Sir Peter Lumsden was that Russian outposts now occupied Zulfikar pass, twenty miles south of Puli-Khatum. A post of Turkomans is also stationed at Sulikahoti, a few miles distant from Penjdeh. Granville said protestations had been made that Russia was earnestly pressing stringent orders to her military commanders to refrain from any forward movement which would be likely to bring about a collision between the Russian and Afghanistan outposts.

RUSSIA'S POSITION.

Granville further said: "In reply to our remonstrances, Russia declined on February 24 to withdraw her advance posts at Sarjarla and Zulfikar pass, but gave assurance that Russian officers had been ordered carefully to avoid conflicts with Afghans, and complications need be feared in the event only of attacks being made by Afghans upon Russian posts. Sir Peter Lumsden exerted himself to prevent a collision, and has advised the Afghans to maintain themselves at the post they now occupy. This advice has been approved by her majesty's government. Sir Peter Lumsden has been instructed to urge the Afghans at the same time to refrain from advancing beyond the present positions. Negotiations are now in progress between her majesty's government and Russia for settlement of the difficulty."

SOME QUESTIONS.

In the lords Salisbury asked whether the Russian outposts were within the boundary of the Afghans. The secretary of state for India said he had no hesitation in saying that England regards the Russian outposts as within the Afghan boundary, and that they form a considerable advance in the direction of Herat.

The Marquis of Lothian asked: "Does the whole question of peace or war between England and Russia depend upon the chance of a squabble between the Afghan and Russian outposts?"

Granville, foreign secretary, said he must have notice of the question. The marquis thereupon gave notice that he would repeat the question.

IN THE COMMONS.

In the commons this evening Sexton, home ruler, asked permission to move adjournment of the house until he could call attention to the speaker's conduct in suspending Wm. O'Brien.

The speaker stopped Sexton, and told him if he wished to impugn the speaker's conduct he must make a direct motion to that effect. The chair could not allow such motion as just made for adjournment. [Loud cheers.]

Sexton appealed to Gladstone to allow discussion upon the motion. Gladstone replied there was nothing in Sexton's motion entitling the mover to any special facilities. Debate upon the redistribution seats bill was then resumed.

The commons rejected amendments to the redistribution bill in favor of representation of minorities, and increasing the number of members in order to give more members to Scotland.

NO FEAR OF WAR.

Lessar, of the Russian Afghan frontier commission, will leave London Monday, discussion of his proposals having closed. There is no fear at the Russian embassy of war between England and Russia. The Russian commission will meet the English commissioner near Balamurghab, about May 10. The decline on the stock exchange in Russian 5s since Feb. 7 is only a quarter to a half.

DENIES THAT THERE IS DISCORD.

LONDON, March 3.—Harcourt, home secretary, in answer to a telegram asking if it was true that the resignation of the ministry was imminent because of discord in the cabinet, sent a telegraphic answer denying that there was any discord in the cabinet, and saying the cabinet was not going to resign.

WARLIKE PREPARATIONS.

LONDON, March 3.—It is reported from Woolwich arsenal that in military circles, it is understood that the government has arranged to hold in readiness 50,000 for reserve against Russia in Afghanistan, England to depend for protection upon the reserves.

PRESS COMMENT.

The Times commends the decisive Afghan policy of the government, and says: "Our rights there are clear, beyond dispute. Whatever may be necessary to the safety of India, England is fully prepared to attempt and perfectly able to perform."

The Standard and other papers comment in a similar character.

The Daily News expresses a hope that Russian statesmen will prove reasonable and keep their word, "otherwise the consequences must lie on their heads, not ours." It says, "We are bound by a solemn treaty to protect the Afghan frontier."

WEDNESDAY MORNING, MARCH 4, 1885

THE NEW ADMINISTRATION.

To-day a democratic president comes into office. Twenty-four years ago to-day the last democratic president retired from office. The contrast between the conditions of that time and of this shows what the republican party has accomplished. It has restored the power, the unity and prestige of the country; it has re-established the union, has abolished slavery, has extended the principle of equal rights, has restored the public credit and has paid a large part of the national debt. The democratic party went out of power loaded with infamy and leaving the government a wreck. The republican party goes out of power covered with honor and leaving the government active, efficient and vital in every function, and the country in the repose of that perfect peace which is secured only through the principles of everlasting truth and justice.

Had the late contest turned upon the historical merit of the two parties, the democratic party would not now come into power. But merit—even historical merit—does not always prevail. There are multitudes who lose sight of great principles and great events. History makes on them no real impression. Volatile in their opinions, capricious in their actions, they turn aside under the influence of considerations remote from, or at best only incidental to, the forces that guide the main current of the history of their times. They substitute petty and ephemeral notions for leading principles, as the so-called republican independents did who voted for Grover Cleveland. Hence the republican party, with all its merits, and supported by its splendid and unassailable history, goes out of power, and the democratic party, with all its faults and errors, and all its odious history—so odious that no candid democrat will now undertake a defence of it—comes in.

And now as it comes in, it is impossible for any one to say what it represents, apart from the sentiment that makes and upholds the solid south. On this subject it represents a body of public opinion that controls sixteen states, with their thirty-two senators and one hundred and twenty representatives in congress, whose bond of union is remembrance of the long struggle of the past. The sentiment that controls this vast political force constitutes the main effective strength of the democratic party. Here is the citadel of its power. But the bond that unites the solid south for the democratic party is the only bond that gives that party any real principle of combination and coherence. In the northern states it has no common principle of action, but is divided on every question. It is divided on the tariff, on financial policy, on the silver question, on the civil service, and it is even liable to some division on prohibition of the liquor traffic. As an opposition party it has pretended that republican methods of administration were all wrong, yet, now, as it changes places with the republican party and takes upon itself the responsibilities of administration, it will be obliged, substantially, to follow republican methods. Its great cry during the campaign was the treasury surplus. Yet it will be forced to keep the surplus there. Another cry was against protection. Yet it dares not, indeed it cannot, overthrow the protective system. It can get no agreement on the subject among its own members.

The silver question furnishes a similar illustration. Mr. Cleveland's letter on this subject, with the reply to it published by a majority of the democrats in congress, shows that the administration starts out with a big fight on its hands on this important question—and it will certainly have another over the civil service rules and the distribution of the spoils. The answer of the democrats in congress to Cleveland's letter urging the suspension of silver coinage is very able. His inaugural address, forthcoming to-day, will show whether he deems himself strong enough to attempt a reply to it, or whether he thinks it will be prudent to retire from the controversy and say no more about it.

Mr. Cleveland owes his elevation to the presidency to the prohibitionists, who withdrew from the republican party and voted for St. John, and to the action of certain persons in New York—hitherto republicans—who professed to think that what they call civil service reform was the leading issue of the campaign, and that Cleveland's position in relation to it gave assurance that under his administration the public service would be divorced from partisanship, and that offices would no longer be bestowed as rewards for personal or political services. Right here somebody is to be greatly deceived. Will it be the democratic office-seekers, or the independent civil-service reformers? Most probably the latter. But in either case the administration will be embroiled with one section or the other of its supporters. It goes into power representing no definite principles or purposes. The incongruous elements of a motley opposition got a reinforcement from republican Ideologists who have nothing in common with them, as they have little in common with each other, and the whole of them made a bare plurality in a state whose electoral vote decided the contest. Whether the diverse elements that elected Cleveland will be actuated by any common principle—beyond that which controls the solid south—which will hold them together during Cleveland's administration, is a problem that will find a solution before the middle of his term.

THE YAMHILL CONTEST—THE CLERICAL SYSTEM.

Two items of unusual expenditure added $5000 to the cost of the recent legislative session. The Laughlin-Burch contest from Yamhill county cost nearly $3000, and, to quote the words of Chairman Gilbert of the ways and means committee, "extreme liberality in the number and pay of clerks" consumed the remainder. There should not have been a contest between Laughlin and Burch. An inquiry if one does not afford sufficient basis for contest, unless the charges are explicit. The Yamhill county authorities had examined and passed upon the matter and it was sheer waste of money and time to go over the whole ground, as the senate elections committee did. The outcome of the investigation, which was only considered on the fortieth day of the session, was nothing, as might have been expected.

The clerical system of our legislature is wrong in principle and something worse than wrong in practice. Each committee is allowed a clerk whose pay is usually $5 per day. Clerks of the enrolling, engrossing and judiciary committees give some reasonable service for this money, but most of the others have not really more than two or three days' work in the whole session. They loll about the corridors, committee rooms and halls day in and day out, and draw nearly double the pay of legislators for being in the way. Many of them are incompetent, their engagement in the beginning being oftener a matter of favor or charity than of necessity. The evil is aggravated by the fact that many of the clerks are girls so young that they ought not to be seen in a public place unprotected by their mothers. The presence of lots of girls of sixteen or seventeen familiarly and at all hours in and about the halls and committee rooms is an impropriety amounting almost to bad conduct.

The next legislature should abolish the present clerical system and adopt one which would reduce the number of clerks and give all who are engaged enough to do to keep them busy. A clerical force of six or more should be placed under the orders of the chief clerk of each house, who could detail them to this committee or that as they happened to be needed. This plan or something like it would reform a serious and growing abuse. It would save money by cutting off the twenty or more idle clerks, and it would result in a more efficient service by barring those who only seek clerkships because they are sinecures requiring no labor and no fitness for it, and it would avoid the [illegible] presence of an idle crowd.

Washington [illegible] speak of several formal conferences held recently by southern congressmen in which the expected course of Cleveland was fully discussed. A good deal of bad blood is coming up and the plan is seriously considered that Mr. Cleveland shall be peremptorily informed that if he expects to retain the cordial support of the members from that section he must give up the idea of consulting simply his own preferences and consult them regarding appointments. Cleveland has gone into a hotbed of [illegible]. It [illegible] the offices shall [illegible] party [illegible] in their localities.

THE INCOMPARABLE WASHINGTON.

In some of the remarks that have been made about Washington in connection with the dedication of the monument to his memory the opinion concerning him has been expressed that is affected by those people who know scarcely anything about him except that he never lied. Mr. Beecher for example says that he was not a great general nor a pronounced statesman, but that he was respectable. We protest against this view of the "incomparable American." It is based in ignorance of his life and character. Washington was a great general, judged by any standard that is relied upon in history. Every substantial success but one of the revolutionary war was achieved by him. From the siege of Boston, the first great triumph, followed by those masterly movements on the Delaware which a no less celebrated soldier than Frederick the Great declared "the most brilliant achievements of any recorded in the annals of military action," down to the last great triumph at Yorktown, we find that Washington was in command of our army at every decisive battle during that long struggle except that of Saratoga. It is rare that a great soldier is at the same time a great statesman. Washington was both; and, what is still more rare, he was a great business man, as eminent in affairs as in war and in state. The successful management of his immense estate at Mt. Vernon, under the conditions of trade at that time, would tax the capacity of any of the great industrial kings of the present day. In every field of enterprise Washington displayed abilities of the highest order. As Mr. Winthrop said in his grand oration: "It was well said by John Milton, in one of his powerful defenses of the people of England, 'War has made many great, whom peace makes small.' But of Washington we may say, as Milton said of Cromwell, that, while war made him great, peace made him greater, or rather that both war and peace alike gave opportunity for the display of those incomparable innate qualities which no mere circumstances could create or destroy."

The story of the little hatchet has undoubtedly tended to produce the idea expressed by Mr. Beecher, that Washington was a "respectable" man, of ordinary capacity, who did his duty, but never rose above the level of commonplace. This idea of Washington is discreditable to Americans. Lowell did not idealize his character more than Shakespeare did that of Julius Cæsar when he described Washington as the "imperial man

Cast in the massive mould
Of those high-statured ages old
Which into grander forms our mortal metal ran."

Gladstone has lately confessed his inability to name among the statesmen of any age or country many or possibly any, who could be the rival of Washington. He says that among all the historical characters of extraordinary ability and purity Washington stands at the head. Mr. Winthrop uttered the verdict of the highest intelligence when he declared the Father of his Country to be the pre-eminent and incomparable American and the foremost figure in all merely human history.

THE LENTEN SEASON.

The protest on behalf of unworldliness with which the observance of Lent began was originally a protest in behalf of a lofty religious life. But it afterwards came to mean an abstinence from certain practices which at first sight, appear to be condemned on purely arbitrary grounds. To be "worldly" was to wear a certain kind of dress, and to indulge in a certain class of amusements. To abstain from these practices was to escape reproach. But the conscience has refused to acknowledge the authority of so technical and artificial a law. It was seen that a man might be free from the recognized notes of worldliness, and yet be covetous, an bilious hypocrite, [illegible] to the poor, servile to the rich, sharp in business, selfish in his family, cowardly in political life, domineering among his friends, or [illegible] in church. It came to be felt that mere abstinence from the habits branded as "worldly" made no real and substantial difference in a man's character and life.

It must be supposed that those who now observe Lent intend by so doing to enter their annual protest in favor of restoring the ideas which the custom originally enshrined. But they will not make their protest effectual simply by attending the services of the church. Unless they return from these services in a humble frame of mind, and show by their unselfish regard for the members of their own families, and by lifting every possible burden from the poor, and in a general way by making the path of life more comfortable for all with whom they have any relations of society or business, they had better throw off the thin mask of hypocrisy. The world would much prefer that they should be sweet sinners rather than sour and cantankerous saints.

In transmitting the civil service commission's report to congress, the president sent with it a special message in which he congratulates the country upon the success of the commission's labors, commends the subject to the favorable consideration of congress and asks for an appropriation to continue the work. During the last year 6347 applicants, from every state and territory except Idaho were examined, and 4141 passed. Of those examined 822 were women. More than 70 per cent had only a common school education. The whole number of appointments made under the rules is 2392. There has been no discrimination on political grounds, either in examinations or appointments. Such is the result of eighteen months' trial of the law, which went into effect in July, 1883. The law covers only about one-tenth of the whole number of offices filled by appointment in the national civil service. It is a long step forward that ten thousand places should have been removed from the patronage system and placed on a business basis.

The victories which the French are achieving in China are a good deal like successful shooting at rhinoceros. The enormous empire can afford to lose millions of its subjects and yet not miss them, while 40,000 Frenchmen and the best part of the French fleet are engaged in the struggle and the hands of France are virtually tied. The recent engagement at sea as well as the destruction of the Chinese gunboats at Foo Chow proves that the Chinese are worthless on the water, while repeated defeats in Tonquin show that they may distract but cannot prevent the [illegible] of their invaders. But the end of the strife appears as far off as ever and it is difficult to see what France is to gain by triumph.

One who was very much with General Grant during the war tells a Washington correspondent that the general not only never swore, but was never surprised. "No man ever saw General Grant speak or act as if he were surprised. His staff officers would try to see if they could not get him to exhibit surprise or astonishment at some of their stories or extravagant statements. They never succeeded. When every one else was surprised he never gave any indication that the matter of the surprise was not perfectly familiar to him. In the most trying [illegible] he was the coolest and most self-possessed."

There was not, as many have supposed, an emergency clause in the mechanics' lien bill passed by the legislature. The law goes into effect ninety days after the day of adjournment—that is, on the 21st of May.

To-day the reign of the southern confederacy begins. Don't you feel as if you wanted to [illegible]?

FOREST GROVE NOTES

FOREST GROVE, March 2.

The Indian school band of ten members is improving rapidly.

W. R. Curtis will spend a season at Astoria with the view of recuperating his health.

The band gave a concert at the city hall on Friday night and netted the snug little sum of $40.

The young men of Forest Grove are taking a lively interest in the subject of [illegible].

J. M. Garrison has a trio of [illegible] Black fowls, consisting of a cock, two hens and two pullets that weigh [illegible] together forty-two pounds.

Active preparations are going on among the farmers for spring work. A good deal of plowing was done last week. [illegible] what is [illegible] there will be lots of it raised.

Soon the woods and meadows will be redolent of sweet odors. The wild currant is in bloom, wood lilies are shooting up their broad, green leaves, strawberry blossoms are to be seen, and thus the whole list of spring flowers will come trooping along as we know it.

H. McDonald of this city has just completed the plans and specifications for the Indian school buildings to be built near Salem. The architectural drawings will be forwarded to Washington immediately, and upon their return bids will be advertised for the erection and furnishing of the buildings.

A new term of school at Pacific university begins next Wednesday. The term now closing has been largely attended, and the relations between students and teachers have been most satisfactory. The new term will open auspiciously, several new ones coming in and not so many as usual going out.

Two military companies are being formed at the Indian school, each company to consist of about sixty members. The uniforms of dark navy blue will be completed in a few days. Each company will have a full corps of officers, and discipline will be undergone in true military style. The chevrons for the non-commissioned officers were purchased at Columbus, Ohio, and were received by the superintendent some days ago.

Several Indian children on the Sound have recently applied for admission in the school here. Dr. Rogers goes this week to bring them on, should there be nothing to prevent their coming. Eighteen are also expected this week from Klamath agency, mostly Modocs. These additions will swell the numbers in attendance to about 225. There are more children now asking for training than can be accommodated. Several years ago you had to beg them to come.

The work of moving the Indian school has begun. Last week eighteen of the carpenter boys went up to Salem to make necessary repairs on the buildings. A car load of provisions, cooking and working utensils were sent with them. Last Friday two car loads of lumber were sent up from Portland. It is thought that comfortable quarters can be arranged for fifty in ten days. When this is done attention will be given to putting in of crops and gardens.

A competitive examination in penmanship was held at Pacific university last week. Specimens submitted were forwarded to Professor A. P. Armstrong of the Portland business college for inspection. According to his report, Professor Maring concurring, Mr. J. C. Clark is entitled to the honor of being the best writer among the gentlemen and Miss Alice Downing the best among the ladies; most improvement, N. P. Dalton. Each of the above-named students received a prize. Professor Armstrong spoke most flatteringly of the students' efforts. Pacific university has a department of penmanship, to which all students are admitted without extra charge.

BEST WAY TO PROTECT SALMON

"If you kill off the enemies of the salmon," said the veteran salmon packer, William Hume, to the writer, "you may then safely leave the salmon to take care of themselves. They are pretty well accustomed to the water and know a great deal more about it than we could possibly find out."

In proof of this being his belief, Mr. Hume pointed to his dock at Eagle cliff, upon which a line of seals extending nearly the whole length of the wharf, lay with their heads projecting over the water.

"Those are the fellows who destroy the salmon," said he, "and for the past month the river has been alive with them. We have recently taken out our seal net, with an eight-inch mesh, and have captured a great many. Between what we take in this way and the number which Mr. Barclay shoots with the rifle, I think we shall have a fair chance to take a few salmon for ourselves when the season opens."

In addition to the seal the writer noticed about twenty sturgeon on the dock, one of which weighed when caught 380 pounds. These were taken in the seal net already mentioned, and Mr. J. A. B. Johnston, who had only the assistance of [illegible], a young man of 18, said it was not amusement to pull a 380-pound fish into the boat.

It is rumored that the sturgeon are to be sent by Mr. Hume to supply [illegible] in the [illegible] and this will doubtless raise the price of salmon in Portland.

VOYAGEUR.

FROM THE OREGON DESERT

SILVER LAKE DESERT, Or., Feb. 12.

So far, the winter has been the lightest we have had. I came out here on the desert December 20, and the heaviest fall of snow since then has been eight inches, which fell the 28th of December, and lay about one week. Stock of all kinds look well. The loss of stock in this part of Lake county will not be over 1 per cent, if that. The big snow north of here did not reach here. It reached the Butte springs, and the further north the deeper the snow, and the further south the less snow.

Why is it that our mail comes by Ashland and is from two weeks to two months on the road, when it could come by the way of Prineville, and we would not be without mail more than one trip through the winter season? We have a mail route running through from Prineville to Silver Lake once a week, and Portland and valley mail ought to come that way.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

[illegible]—A meeting of the council committee on streets and public property was held yesterday [illegible] the proposition of the [illegible] electric lamp [illegible] city pay [illegible] a year [illegible] for five years, did not meet with general favor. The price was considered reasonable enough, but the length of the term of contract was strongly objected to. Councilman Ames will not [illegible] that the matter was entirely in the way of an experiment, and if a [illegible] the city was not entirely satisfied it ought not to be compelled to put up with the same thing for five years longer. On the other hand it was urged that the cost of an electric plant was so great that no company could afford to put one up and run the risk of having to take it down and have it lie idle and useless upon their hands at the expiration of a year. Councilman Andrus declared that under no circumstances would he vote to enter into such a contract for a greater period than two years, and still he was very anxious to have the experiment of electric lighting tried. The committee finally agreed to amend the ordinance, making the term of contract two years instead of five. The proposed ordinance also provided that the lamps should be lighted from twilight to midnight only. The council committee were in favor of having them burning from twilight to daylight and so amended, providing, however, that for this an additional compensation of $2000 a year. As thus amended the committee will report in favor of the passage of this ordinance

THE PHEASANTS RELEASED.—Messrs. Curry and Spencer, who had charge of the Chinese pheasants sent over to Protection island, have returned. On the day that they arrived at Port Townsend a tug, provided by Judge Swan, was in readiness to convey them to the island, but shortly after starting a fearful squall came up and they were obliged to put back. The next day they succeeded in reaching the island, which they describe as a sort of Happy valley, a la Rasselas. The proprietor was on hand with a wagon and hauled the coops and baskets up to his place where the birds were released. They walked around for a little time and finally, realizing that they were free, rose one after another and flew to the timber. One golden pheasant hen, after being out a while, went back into her basket, and when it was closed, hopped on top of it and looked as disconsolate as Adam did when the back door of Eden was shut against him. Judge Swan sent over a specimen of the Alaska sea parrott to adorn the rooms of the Rod and Gun Club, and also a very singular and handsome cap formed from the skin of the northern loon, with the head and neck attached, which was used as a dancing cap by a chief of some northern tribe. When worn by a bald-headed man it appears as if the loon was trying to hatch out a big egg, which, generally speaking, may be presumed to be addled

INVESTIGATION OF OLD POLICE ACCOUNTS.—George R. McKenzie, who was appointed to investigate the books and accounts of the late chief of police, submitted an elaborately prepared report to the committee yesterday. It will be presented to the council this evening. Mr McKenzie claims for his report that it is absolutely correct, as he is able to prove by the vouchers in the office of the auditor and clerk. According to his report these accounts show a deficiency of over $700, which sum has never been paid over and is now due the city. At the time when the council appointed Mr McKenzie as an expert to examine these accounts, two other men hitherto silent and reserved became suddenly interested in the matter. One of these was the late chief himself and the other was his confidential clerk, one I. Besser. Each of these men likewise employed an accountant, whose reports are intended to offset any charges that may be made against their employers. The results of these last accountants have of course been kept very secret, but in some manner it has leaked out that the late chief will have the figures to show that he has paid every cent due the city, while Besser, the more effectually to clear his skirts, for he was the financier of the [illegible] administration, will bring forward figures which, it is hinted, showing that the city is heavily indebted to his chief

PARDON ASKED FOR AN INDIAN.—United States District Attorney Watson yesterday received a dispatch from Alexander R Bottler, clerk of pardons, asking him to forward the facts in the case of Capsula, a Umatilla Indian, serving a ten years' sentence in the penitentiary for murder, and his opinion in regard to a pardon being granted the prisoner. Capsula is one of three Umatilla Indians convicted of the murder of Charles Mulharrin, a trapper, who camped on the Umatilla reservation, and who, having given the Indians some whisky, was murdered by them in a drunken brawl which ensued. One of the three, Timmoch, has died since his incarceration. Capsula is said to be dying of consumption, and parties are endeavoring to secure his release, which accounts for the dispatch received by District Attorney Watson. The third, Ah Hoot, was accounted the worst of the three and a dangerous fellow. He will probably be left to serve out his sentence even if Capsula succeeds in obtaining a pardon before he goes to the happy hunting ground. The close confinement and dreary monotony of prison life must be dreadful to Indians, accustomed to a nomadic life, and it is no wonder that they do not live long in the penitentiary

SMUGGLED OPIUM DISCOVERED.—The Chinese, among other things, are noted as the most cunning and ingenious of all smugglers, and custom house officials on this coast have to keep their wits continually about them to discover violations of the law. Not a vessel arrives from China in any port without the inspector discovering some new hole by which the cunning Mongols have attempted to bring their most valued drug, opium, into this country free of duty. The latest scheme discovered is reported from San Francisco and was the result of a sudden freak upon the part of an agile custom house officer. While Inspectors McLaughlin, McGrary and McCoy were aboard the City of Tokio, one of his colleagues bantered McCoy to climb the mainmast. McCoy slipped off his coat and mounted with the agility of an old tar. When he reached the top spar he uttered a shout, which caused his companions to look up in apprehension, but they saw him still clinging to the rigging, which he was examining closely. He commenced to unwind some string, and in a few moments descended with eight 5-tael boxes of opium which he had found lashed to the top spar

CHOCK FULL OF HUMOR.—Have you seen St. Jacobs Oil Family Calendar? It was a trifle late getting out this far, but is none the less welcome. When the Charles A. Vogeler company undertake anything in the way of announcements, they do it in original and attractive style, and somehow or other they have a happy way of pleasing the reader whose attention they desire to arrest. This time they have issued a 32-page pamphlet, in which nearly all the humorists of the country are presented, among them Bill Nye; Robert J Burdette, Burlington Hawkeye; F. H. Gassaway, "Derrick Dodd," San Francisco Post; C B Lewis, "M Quad," Detroit Free Press; Stanley Huntley, Spoopendyke; Opie P Read, Kansas Traveler; J. K. Munkittrick of Puck, and others. One poem, "Jim, the Wharf Rat," on page 3, is a gem of uniqueness and pathos. The company are now introducing the Red Star cough cure, and take occasion to mention it once or twice in the calendar, but you can skip that easily and peruse only the many really humorous productions, none of which have appeared in print before

TILLAMOOK ISOLATED FROM THE WORLD.—Joseph Smith of Tillamook, is in the city. He was obliged in coming to travel for fifty miles over what he calls the most villainous trail the sun ever shone on, and on the greater portion of which he says the sun never shines. He says the people of Tillamook are cut off from communication with the outside world, as on account of the bar not being buoyed no vessels can come into the bay, and supplies of all kinds are becoming scarce. The lighthouse tender [illegible] placed two spar buoys at the entrance to the harbor a short time since, but owing to the imperfect manner in which they were fastened one was gone at the end of five days and the other at the end of ten days. Unless the bar is buoyed vessels will not go in there to take in provisions or carry away lumber and produce, and as there is practically no other way of getting there except by water, the inhabitants think that Uncle Sam should at least keep their channel buoyed

CHANGE IN OVERLAND TIME.—Commencing next Sunday the transfer boat connecting with the Pacific express will arrive at Ash street wharf at noon instead of 1 30 P. M., as at present. The boat connecting with the Atlantic express will leave Ash street at 1 30 P. M. instead of 12 15 P. M. This will be more convenient than the present schedule, as it will allow passengers to take their noon meal at the customary hour. It is the intention of the company to run all trains between Portland and The Dalles in daylight, and the schedule to go into effect next Sunday will not be far from the summer time table.

CUSTOM HOUSE SALARIES.—There was a meeting of council committees yesterday, and the councilmen present spent some time in poring over the amendments to the city charter passed by the late legislature. They seemed unable to discover what [illegible] present found [illegible] felt [illegible] but seemed rather jolly over the fact that they were all well to fix their own salaries, and they will now give our citizens an opportunity to know at what they value their services. Probably the best way would [illegible] they should have [illegible] the tax [illegible] the difference

SAFE [illegible] WORK [illegible].—The [illegible] of the [illegible] Saturn [illegible] No [illegible] Madison street, was entered by a burglar or burglars Monday night, who escaped with the plunder, leaving no trace which may result in capture. Entrance was effected through a window of the laundry in the basement, and the depredations were confined to this room, which leads to the belief that the work was that of Chinese. A large quantity of household and table linen, which had just been laundried, was taken, and if there was but one thief he went away heavily loaded

IRON ORE.—There was received here yesterday several specimens of magnetic iron ore from the [illegible] mine in Jackson county. The mine is located at Gold Hill station, on the O. & C. road very close to the railroad track. Assays show that the ore contains 61 per cent, and its richness may be understood when it is stated that [illegible] per cent is the highest known. Some specimens have been presented to the Oregon Board of Immigration and some will be sent to New Orleans by Mr C W Burrage, who is part owner in the mine

LECTURE TO-NIGHT.—The second lecture in the social science course will be given at the chapel of the Unitarian church this evening by President Ellis, of Forest Grove. The theme is "Unsolved Problems," and will undoubtedly discuss the leading questions now actually before the country or looming up in the near future. Coming on the evening of Inauguration day this subject seems to be happily chosen, and will probably draw a large number of listeners

INQUIRE FOR YOUR MAGAZINES.—Subscribers to papers, magazines, etc, frequently are disappointed by not finding anything for them when they call at the postoffice. Many papers and magazines arrive at the postoffice without any address, the wrapper having been torn off in the mails. They are kept for a full month, and regular subscribers who fail to receive their magazines will do well to inquire specifically for publications they expect, and they will be likely to receive them

HAND GRENADE CRAZE.—From the account found in another column, it appears that a hand grenade craze has struck the town, and a very sane craziness it is. A fire extinguisher so simple, effective and cheap is worthy of general adoption

BRINGING THEIR BABES.

Interesting Bits of Romance in a Pullman Car on the Northern Pacific

There left St Paul in a Pullman car on the Northern Pacific railroad last Friday two ladies, bound west, each to meet her husband, and each bearing to the father his child which he had not yet seen. One of the ladies had been married in Chicago on Christmas day, 1882 and the following fall her husband went to Helena to seek his fortune. He had obtained a fair start, and sent for his wife to join him in his new western home. Her babe was a hazel-eyed boy, already in short clothes, and she declared it to be the perfect image of her father. The train reached Helena late at night, and none of the passengers saw the meeting of the interested parties

The other lady was Mrs. Taylor of Liverpool, wife of Captain Taylor, master of an English ship now lying at Tacoma. She was married two years ago, and had not seen her husband since he sailed for Australia last April. A Portland gentleman was a passenger in the sleeper, and related to an OREGONIAN reporter something of the pleasure and amusement the little woman and her little babe afforded all her fellow travelers. "Both the little woman and the little babe were cheerful, good-looking, bright-eyed and fair to see, and every passenger felt a protecting interest in them. It wasn't long before all had won her confidence. There never was a woman so full of hope and tenderness and love and anxiety as this little woman was, and all day long she wondered whether the captain would be at the depot to meet her or whether the captain had got her telegram and whether if she sent the baby ashore by somebody else the captain would know it, meeting it in the street, which, seeing that he had never set eyes on it in his life, was not very likely in the abstract, but was probable enough to the young mother. She was such an artless little creature, and was in such a sunny, beaming, hopeful state, and let out all this matter clinging close about her heart so freely that the two other lady passengers entered into the spirit of it as much as she. There was one little weazen, dried-apple faced old woman, who took occasions to doubt the constancy of husbands in such circumstances, and there was another lady old enough to moralize on the lightness of human affections and yet not so old that she could help nursing the baby, now and then, or smiling with the rest when the little woman called it by its father's name and asked it all manner of antistic questions concerning him in the joy of her heart."

At last the train pulled up at the East Portland station at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon. It had scarcely stopped, when a good-looking, large, bronzed man entered the car. Dropping her babe upon the seat in front of her, the little woman sprung up and in a moment was clinging around the captain's neck. Several of the passengers could not see plainly through their tears for the next minute and none of them cared to remain and disturb the scene as the little woman led the father back to the babe

MILITIA COURT-MARTIAL.

How the Officers Made Little Progress in Hearing Captain Farrar's Case

The court martial called to try Captain Farrar of Company G, met last evening at the rooms of H. H. Northup in Union block.

There were present Major Northup, Major Brown, Captain Pierce of Company I, Captain Hare of Company E, Captain Adams of the Light Battery, Captain Mooney of Emmett guard, Captain Cooke of Washington guards, Lieutenant Colonel Phillips, Lieutenant Taylor of Washington guards, judge advocate, Captain Farrar and several members of his company. These gentlemen were in uniform and presented a very martial appearance. The door was guarded by a sentry who was the only person present allowed to wear his hat. Several of the officers are veterans who have smelled powder, and nearly all the others present have seen it

The judge advocate read the charges preferred against Captain Farrar, which were for disobedience of orders in not detailing a guard from his company to be present at the execution of J W. Murray and for conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman in stating that he would not turn out his men under orders from Captain Cooke as he did not consider Captain Cooke [illegible] to command men

When asked to plead to these charges Captain Farrar demurred to the jurisdiction of the court, that as he had never been mustered into the service he was not amenable

The court, after excluding all outsiders, considered the demurrer and overruled it on the ground that when Captain Farrar accepted his commission he accepted enough responsibility to make him amenable to the charges

Captain Farrar was again asked to plead and again demurred on the grounds that the charge was not laid under any article of war, and that he was not in service.

The room was again cleared and the court again overruled the demurrer. Captain Farrar then entered a plea of not guilty to both charges. Several members of Company G were called as witnesses by the prosecution. Each testified that he had received an order to be present at the execution, but that he had found it impossible to attend and had sent an excuse. These excuses, it appeared, did not reach Captain Farrar in time for him to detail other members of his company

George Honar testified that Captain Farrar said he would not detail his men under the orders of Captain Cooke

The whole matter seemed to be a confirmation of the old saying, that a man cannot serve two masters, and shows that a man whose time is occupied as a salesman or book-keeper is in no condition to attend to calls for military service, notwithstanding that the militia companies receive several thousand dollars yearly from the county.

This idea was further exemplified when it was found necessary to adjourn the court because one of the members had a business appointment, and it was found that some one or other of the court would not be able to be present on any evening of this week, owing to business. So the court was adjourned till Wednesday evening next week, and Captain Farrar granted a respite

ICE NO LONGER A LUXURY

"Ice has become a necessity of the age, not only for ordinary domestic use, but for a large number of new applications which had not been thought of until lately"

We are pleased to inform our readers and the public generally that the supply for the coming summer promises to be abundant, and of a quality far superior to anything ever seen in Portland. The new machinery for the manufacture of ice from distilled water now being built for the Portland Artificial Ice Co, we are informed will be in operation early in April, with a capacity equal to the supplying of Portland and East Portland in the hottest day of July or August.

Parties using large quantities of ice will consult their own interests by signing no contracts for ice. We think ice will be cheap enough to be within reach of all

OREGON WOODS TO NEW ORLEANS

Some Very Fine Specimens Collected from the Columbia River to be Shipped this Week

Mr C W Burrage, the well known pioneer surveyor, has made a small but very good collection of Oregon woods in the rough, to be shipped this week to the exposition at New Orleans, together with other exhibits. They were seen yesterday at Ash street wharf by a reporter of this paper. The following is a partial list of the woods

Five sections of the [illegible] flow fir. They were cut from a tree 240 feet in height, at distances of [illegible] feet. The first section is from near the ground and measures 5[illegible] inches in diameter [illegible] These [illegible] sections, 50 feet from the ground, is 47 inches in diameter; the third, 100 feet, [illegible] inches; the [illegible] feet, [illegible] inches; the fifth, [illegible] feet, [illegible] inches. It would have been a fine thing to [illegible] tree entire [illegible] show [illegible] here, but [illegible] is a trifle too long for rail transportation. The first limb was 100 feet from the ground. Professor G. H. Collier describes this as [illegible] He gives as the maximum altitude 300 feet and the maximum diameter 144 inches. This is the principal timber of western Oregon and Washington. Most of the lumber shipped from the Columbia river and Puget sound to all parts of the world is of this variety. This timber is the strongest known in proportion to its weight

There are two spruce bolts from which shakes are made. The tree from which the bolts were taken was 37 inches in diameter at the ground, at 100 feet above the ground the diameter was 13 inches, at 100 feet 23 inches, at 210 feet 10 inches. The portion above that point broke up so badly when the tree fell that it could not be measured. There are also two large spruce bolts, with the bark on, that run to the heart of the tree. A section of the same tree, one foot square, with the bark on either end, is shown, the diameter of the stump being 72 inches

Sections of the white or mountain hemlock will also be sent, taken in the same way as those of the yellow fir, except at a distance of thirty feet instead of fifty

The above mentioned woods were cut on the land of the Northwest Timber Company, near the Columbia river, in Clatsop county, about six miles above Knappa

Captain Ankeny has contributed several bolts of cedar (Thuya gigantea) from his camp in the same neighborhood

Weidler's mill will send flooring, rustic, etc. of yellow fir

FREIGHTS—The Br bark M. & E. Cox 1143 tons, wood, arrived in to-day and is disengaged. The market is wholly without new interest

Reviewing the California freight market the San Francisco Commercial News of last Friday says The past week has shown the same general characteristics noted in several of the preceding weekly reports of the market the period at present under review differing only in degree, the dullness being a more prominent feature than ever and views of exporters and shipowners more widely apart. The political state in England is a disturbing element that unsettles the wheat market there and causes conservative action On its future course without doubt the freight market here is entirely dependent and if within a reasonable time there is no improvement the probabilities are that both wheat and freights will succumb to the inevitable and give way sufficiently to admit of some export movement Between the two local interests however there is no doubt that tonnage has the strongest position Wheat is pouring into the warehouses at Port Costa and adjacent tidewater points receipts at Port Costa averaging considerably over 100,000 centals a day, which shows that some one is purchasing freely and others are selling as the wheat must have long ago been under cover where it could have remained for the season had it not been deemed advisable to sell Of the fleet on the berth fully 17 000 tons register are loaded, leaving a very small amount needing cargo The tonnage in sight here and to arrive aggregates but 450 000 tons carrying capacity and this includes tonnage bound to Wilmington as well as this port also many vessels not available for wheat and many that cannot arrive until another crop forms new conditions upon which to figure The exports since January 1 have been 264 531 short tons having according to the produce exchange figures of that date 566,254 tons in the state, and in all probability the whole of that amount if not more is available for export, as the exchange figures are generally conceded to be under the mark. Such being the situation it is not strange that shipowners, in hope of a turn for the better abroad, have decided to withdraw from the market and that ships are ballasting and going into the stream to lay up. Owing to the extreme dullness the market cannot be quoted with accuracy as not a single spot charter has been reported during the week The best offer obtainable is probably £1 12s 6d U K. Havre or Antwerp for wood and as the French legislature has increased the duty on foreign wheat to 6s 6d per quarter these last options are of questionable value

Smith moved the adoption of the report. Wheeler stated that the recent fires [illegible] that firemen refused to work with Pimpel and hoped they would receive the respect from the council Chief Engineer Sprague being invited to address the council stated that at a recent drill Mr Pimpel gave satisfaction [illegible] between 60 and 70 [illegible] Wheeler replied he had [illegible] from members of Pioneer company. Gruner stated that Mr Brandt of the O & C railway had testified to the capability of Pimpel but Wheeler thought his discharge from the company when there was a demand for men looked suspicious The motion to adopt the report was then put and carried Ayes Laing Smith and Gruner noes Kindorf and Wheeler

THE PARK RAILWAY TROUBLE

Messrs Gruner Wheeler and Nicolai the special committee to whom was referred the matter of the railway track now [illegible] Fifth and Seventh streets reported as follows

We find that the common council on the [illegible] of March 1883 passed an ordinance [illegible] the Park Railway to construct and operate railways [illegible] on streets in the city of East Portland, [illegible] time [illegible] the company [illegible] cars upon its road and no limit to [illegible] of the privilege granted

That such company never formally accepted the terms and conditions of said ordinance but proceeded to lay about one mile of railway track upon the streets designated therein which is the track [illegible] referred to your committee and it is claimed by said railway company that said ordinance protects them in maintaining the track in its present condition

There is no provision in the charter of the city for the granting of any of the privileges enumerated in this ordinance and the only authority which the council could possibly [illegible] is the [illegible] power incident and necessary to its control of the streets of the city as public highways and extends no further than public interests may require or in any manner of [illegible] to the public in their use as highways

We find that the company has never [illegible] railway or done any work on the same for [illegible] eighteen months

We find that the railway is constructed in such a manner as not only to greatly injure the streets as public thoroughfares but to render travel thereon actually dangerous and that it is in the opinion of your committee a public nuisance

And we would therefore recommend that the common council repeal said pretended ordinance under which the Park Railway Company claim to have constructed this railway and that the street commissioner be instructed to notify such company to forthwith remove all such track and other materials as obstructions from the streets of the city

On motion of Gruner the report was adopted and the street commissioner instructed in accordance therewith.

REPORTS OF OFFICERS

From the street commissioner reporting that the extended time for the improvement of I street, between Ninth and Twelfth had expired referred to the committee on streets

From the same, recommending the early improvement of the [illegible] street bridge as the same was unsafe for travel referred to the committee on streets

The city attorney made a verbal report in substance as follows In the case of J F Bennett he had made answer that the owner of the warrant should look for payment from the special fund provided for the improvement and seek redress by mandamus and that the city was not liable for a general judgment The court however had held otherwise He had taken exceptions to the ruling of the court and the case would be appealed to the supreme court In the case of French vs. The City the supreme court had previously ruled in accordance with the decision of the lower court in this case but its legal soundness was not generally entertained He had asked further time to answer, but no further answer was possible In the suit of S Heiple against the city, the taking of testimony was completed Each litigant was liable for his costs of the same and when paid the case would be heard Bills for payment of witnesses on behalf of the city were now before the council. On motion of Wheeler the report was referred to the committee on judiciary

From the city recorder reporting he had completed the assessment roll and turned over the same to the treasurer for collection The report contained a summary of values tax levy etc which have heretofore been published in THE OREGONIAN Report received and placed on file.

[illegible] Brothers

It affords me pleasure to assure you that after [illegible] ing Dr C. McLane's Celebrated Liver Pills for [illegible] more than twenty years in my family, that I re[illegible] ard them as being superior to any I have ever [illegible] sed or have seen used I have not had them con[illegible] antly and tried to try others and I have tried [illegible] good variety, but I have never had any to act so promptly, profitably and nicely as McLane's. I have used them on myself, wife and children with the most gratifying results.

For children, having used them on my own wife [illegible] ch easy and happy effect, I would recommend [illegible] em to one and all. These pills do the work—[illegible] promptly, do it well, and leave no ill effect [illegible] ehind.

As a bile remover, as a liver corrector, as a [illegible] forerunner preparing the system for quinine, there is no pill or medicine equal to Dr C. McLane's celebrated Liver Pills I expect to use them as long as I live, if they continue as good as they have been in the past.

Yours truly

H. H. GILES,

Pastor of M E Church, South Myers Station Tampa District, Florida Conference.
